William Blair International Developed Plus Fund

Fund Performance & Positioning

The William Blair International Developed Plus Fund (Class N shares) outperformed its benchmark, the MSCI World ex-U.S. Index (net), during the first quarter.

First quarter outperformance was primarily driven by positive stock selection across most sectors. The Industrials, Consumer Discretionary and Financials sectors were the most notable contributors to relative return. Within the Industrials sector, Airbus propelled relative returns. The company benefited from a high level of deliveries and improved margins, but the key drivers of improved profitability going forward are its A320 program and the ramp of the A350, which is running ahead of schedule. E-commerce giant Alibaba Group within Consumer Discretionary was an additional source of outperformance. The company reported year-over-year revenue growth of over 40% during the quarter, impressive for a company of its size. Structural growth of e-commerce in China should enable mid-term revenue growth exceeding 35%, underpinned by consumption growth, deepening internet and mobile data penetration, and the favorable backdrop for online versus offline adoption. While we acknowledge competitors may leverage mobile positioning to chip away at its dominance, we believe that network effects and the strength of its ecosystem underpinned by its logistics and payment solutions should reinforce its competitive advantage. Within Financials, Switzerland-based private markets asset manager Partners Group Holding AG contributed to relative returns, supported by solid earnings results. Client demand remains strong for private market investments and management remains selective on asset purchases given structurally high valuations. Management continues to expect performance fees to account for 20-30% of revenues (24% in 2018). We believe Partners Group should continue to benefit from strong structural demand, and it continues to stand out for its global platform (distribution, investments and clients), breadth of private market investment solutions, investment performance and cash flow generation.

Partially offsetting these effects was the underweight allocation to the Europe, coupled with below average stock selection within the Energy sector. Within Energy, Canadian oil and gas company Enerplus Corp detracted from relative results. Enerplus has done a solid job migrating from a fragmented asset base with average execution to a concentrated portfolio of primarily low-cost, scalable assets that are well managed. We believe corporate performance should continue improving as the Bakken receives the bulk of Enerplus's capex and it continues to grow oil production at a 15-20% CAGR for the next several years. Fourth quarter earnings results were slightly ahead of consensus expectations, benefiting from a one-time tax benefit. Management reiterated their balanced, disciplined approach to capital allocation and confirmed they would move forward with another share buyback (7% of shares outstanding), as they see good value in the shares.

During the period, Consumer Staples exposure was reduced to an underweight position through the liquidations of Unilever NV and Yakult Honsha Co Ltd. Industrials exposure was increased during the period, supported by additions to aerospace holdings Airbus and Safran, and Canadian National Railway on positive operating momentum. Exposure to Information Technology also increased, driven primarily by market appreciation. From a geographic perspective, notable adjustments were increases to Europe, offset by a decrease to U.K. exposure. The portfolio's weighting in Emerging Markets approximated 9% at the end of the period, up modestly from 8.5% at the beginning of the period.

Market Review & Outlook

After a difficult end to 2018, equity markets around the world rallied to start the year despite signals of moderating global growth. The MSCI ACWI Investable Market Index (IMI) gained 12.29% in USD terms, the largest quarterly gain since 2010, as investor sentiment was bolstered by a more dovish tone out of major central banks and improved trade talks between the U.S. and China. Developed market equities outpaced emerging markets primarily driven by strength in the U.S. and Canada.

U.S. equities rallied in January (+8.60%) and continued to post strong returns throughout the quarter (+13.99%). Growth in the U.S. remained solid but started to decelerate off of last year's previous highs. The Federal Reserve's acknowledgment of slower economic growth and dovish stance on interest rates helped ease investor sentiment and boosted returns across sectors.

European equities also advanced despite signs of significant deceleration in manufacturing growth. Specifically, purchasing manager surveys continued to point to deceleration in the pace of industrial orders growth and subsequent industrial production growth in the Euro Area. Brexit woes continued to weigh on the economic conditions within the United Kingdom but the market felt some relief following the announcement that the European Union had agreed to delay the Brexit process past the March 29 deadline. The MSCI Europe ex-U.K. IMI advanced 10.50% and the MSCI U.K. IMI advanced 12.32% in USD terms during the quarter.

Within emerging markets, the story for the quarter was the rebound in equity performance across China's mainland securities (A-shares), which advanced 33.02% for the quarter, erasing the 32.99% loss incurred in 2018 (as measured by the MSCI China A Onshore Index in USD terms). The A-share market rallied following news of several fiscal and monetary stimulus measures aimed to boost the economy. Additionally, A-shares were bolstered by news that MSCI would quadruple the weighting of A-shares in global benchmarks by increasing the inclusion factor from 5% to 20%. Outside of China, emerging market equities broadly lagged the global benchmark. Rising geopolitical tensions between India and Pakistan weighed on the Indian Rupee and equity market. The MSCI India IMI modestly advanced +6.65% in USD terms for the quarter.

From a global sector perspective (as measured by the MSCI ACWI IMI), Information Technology significantly led the market, driven by strength within small cap software and IT services. Other cyclical sectors such as Real Estate, which sold off sharply in late 2018, rallied during the first quarter of the year. Conversely, Financials lagged primarily due to weakness in Japan.

As we begin the second quarter of 2019, domestic demand in key jurisdictions is showing signs of stabilization and synchronized fiscal expansion. Existing home sales rebounded strongly in March in the U.S., and private consumption growth in the Euro Area is tracking a nearly 2% annualized pace. At the same time, purchasing manager surveys continue to point to deceleration in the pace of industrial orders growth and subsequent industrial production growth.

We regard the deceleration in economic activity in the U.S. to be more about the base effect rather than the end of the current economic cycle. As the impact of corporate tax cuts unveiled at the beginning of 2018 dissipates, the U.S. economy is returning to a growth rate of approximately 2%. The divergence between the U.S. and other economies is normalizing in line with our expectations. If the rest of the world continues to grow at the current pace, the growth wedge and by extension the substantial outperformance of U.S. markets vis-à-vis the rest of the world is likely to moderate from here.

Growth is being supported by fiscal stimulus measures globally. Starting in Europe, the Euro Area is set to experience the first fiscal expansion in a decade. In Germany, Finance Minister Olaf Scholz has set aside approximately €150bn for much needed investment in infrastructure, education, housing and digital technology over the next four years. More immediately, the fiscal stimulus slated for this year will be largely for consumer spending, as higher unemployment and pension benefits, together with a tax cut to lower income earners, is expected to boost purchasing power by 0.5% of GDP. The abolition of the solidarity surcharge, which accounts for 5.5% additional income tax, is set to be reduced beginning this year. Government construction orders soared 12.2% in Q4 2018 from the prior quarter, and will likely advance further in 2019.

economy's ongoing transition to a consumption and services-driven growth model.

In France, President Emmanuel Macron responded to the "yellow vests" movement by announcing measures to boost the purchasing power of households by about 0.4% of GDP. These include cancellation of the increase in social charges on pensions, an increase in the activity bonus for employees paid the minimum wage, and a tax exemption on exceptional year-end bonuses and income from overtime.

In China, the government continues to roll out tax cuts following its 2-year effort to streamline and digitize tax collection. In Q1 2019, the government announced a CNY2 trn tax cut on business activity. Effective April 1, VAT in the top general category will be reduced from 16% to 13%, on top of reductions in the employer contribution to social security from 20% to 16%. Together with household income tax reform implemented last year, these measures will continue to support domestic activity. At the same time, the scope for further adjustments on the fiscal side is not exhausted, as the State Administration of Taxation continues to report an increase in aggregate tax collections in excess of expectations.

The U.S. continues to maintain a highly expansionary fiscal policy stance. Although major corporate tax cuts boosted domestic activity in H1 2018, the U.S. budget deficit is expected to be even larger this year, at nearly 4.5% of GDP, despite the domestic economy expanding at a 2%+ annual pace.

Within portfolios, we maintain our focus on companies with sustainable earnings trends and recurring-revenue business models that add growth visibility at this later stage of the economic cycle. Recent positioning adjustments within our ACWI-oriented funds generally reflect our incrementally less cautious outlook on China. Within China, we continue to emphasize domestically-oriented consumer, healthcare and technology companies that we believe are well positioned to benefit from the
