

William Blair Small Cap Growth Fund Fund Manager Commentary

Market Overview

In a volatile first quarter, U.S. equity indices declined as the Omicron wave, inflation concerns, and the invasion of Ukraine weighed on equity valuations. Entering the year, the U.S. was experiencing a surge in COVID-19 cases as the Omicron variant spread quickly, resulting in renewed disruptions for certain businesses. Elevated inflation drove expectations for faster monetary tightening by the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) and corresponded with a rise in 10-year U.S. Treasury bond yields and U.S. mortgage rates. During March, the FOMC increased the target federal funds rate by 25 basis points for the first increase in this cycle, with expectations for multiple increases throughout 2022 and 2023. The Russian invasion of Ukraine intensified inflationary pressures and supply chain concerns, given Russia's role as a major energy and commodity producer, and contributed to higher oil and gas prices. With higher inflation and an increase in expectations for the pace of Fed rate hikes, equity valuations were pressured while U.S. corporate earnings remained solid.

Fund Performance

The William Blair Small Cap Growth Fund's (Class N shares) outperformed its benchmark in the first quarter, driven by a combination of style factors and stock-specific dynamics. From a style perspective, our typical valuation sensitivity was a modest tailwind as the more attractively valued stocks in the benchmark outperformed during the period. From a stock-specific perspective, selection in Health Care and Information Technology contributed positively to relative returns. Our top individual contributors included Cameco Corp (Energy), Gogo (Communication Services), Century Aluminum (Materials), Ducommun (Industrials) and BWX Technologies (Industrials). Cameco, a company focused on the mining, trading and processing of uranium, reported strong momentum in new contract activity as the fundamental backdrop continues to improve. Gogo, a provider of telecommunication services, reported strong earnings results across all important metrics. Conversely, our top individual detractors included Grid Dynamics (Information Technology), Kornit Digital (Industrials), Beauty Health (Consumer Staples), Rush Street Interactive (Consumer Discretionary) and Builders FirstSource (Industrials). Shares of IT consulting firm Grid Dynamics declined on concerns regarding the impact of the ongoing Russia/Ukraine conflict on the company's business. Shares of Kornit Digital, a manufacturer of innovative digital textile printers and proprietary consumables, lagged as margins are expected to be weaker-than-anticipated due to continued investments into the business.

Outlook

Amid tightening financial conditions and significant geopolitical tension, we anticipate greater focus on the potential for slowing economic growth. Relatedly, near the end of the first quarter, 2-year and 10-year U.S. Treasury yields inverted briefly. From a demand standpoint, the outlook for consumer spending is opaque given the opposing dynamics of inflationary pressures weighing on real income versus pent-up demand for services and experiences post-Omicron and a positive employment backdrop. Supply chain disruptions are likely to continue, exacerbated by conflict in eastern Europe as well as China's zero COVID policy closing major manufacturing centers throughout the country, further clouding visibility as to the U.S. economic trajectory in the near to intermediate term.

With this backdrop, we believe it is increasingly likely that investors will differentiate among stocks on the basis of quality attributes, such as the durability of earnings and margins. Further, given the valuation-driven sell off in the first quarter, more attractive valuations in certain areas have presented opportunities. We believe our philosophy of identifying durable businesses whose stocks present attractive risk/reward opportunities should serve us well in a variety of economic environments, as it has historically.

IMPORTANT DISCLOSURES

The Fund's returns will vary, and you could lose money by investing in the Fund. The Fund invests most of its assets in equity securities of small cap domestic growth companies where the primary risk is that the value of the equity securities it holds might decrease in response to the activities of those companies or market and economic conditions. Individual securities may not perform as expected or a fund used by the Adviser may fail to produce its intended result. Investing in smaller companies involves special risks, including higher volatility and lower liquidity. Small cap stocks are also more sensitive to purchase/sale transactions and changes in the issuer's financial condition. These risks are intensified for investments in micro-cap companies. Individual securities may not perform as expected or a fund used by the Adviser may fail to produce its intended result. Convertible securities may be called before intended, which may have an adverse effect on investment objectives. The Fund is not intended to be a complete investment program. The Fund is designed for long-term investors.

The Russell 2000 Growth Index is the Fund's primary benchmark and consists of small-capitalization companies with above average price-to-book ratios and forecasted growth rates. The Index is unmanaged, does not incur fees or expenses, and cannot be invested in directly.
