Market Overview

Most U.S. equity indices declined in the third quarter, marking the third consecutive quarter of negative returns. During the first half of the year, the market was largely dominated by elevated inflation and monetary tightening by the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) which broadly pressured equity valuations. During March, the FOMC implemented the first increase of the target federal funds rate in this cycle. With record-high gasoline prices, elevated mortgage rates, lower asset prices and higher food costs, consumer sentiment weakened, as did other economic data points, such as U.S. manufacturing PMIs and housing-related indicators. At the same time, the labor market and corporate earnings remained resilient.

The third quarter began with an equity market rally fueled by optimism that inflation would moderate, requiring fewer rate increases by the Fed. This sentiment faded mid-quarter after the Fed reiterated its priority was to tame inflation, potentially at the expense of economic growth, and equities fell back into negative territory to end the quarter. Correspondingly, 10-year U.S. Treasury bond yields rose and the U.S. dollar continued to strengthen. Supply chain pressure began to ease, providing welcomed deflationary tailwinds to food and transportation costs. U.S. corporate earnings broadly held up well in the quarter, while forward-looking guidance generally reflected considerable uncertainty and consensus estimates began to decline.

Fund Performance

The William Blair Mid Cap Growth Fund (Class N shares) underperformed its benchmark, the Russell Midcap Growth index during the third quarter. The portfolio trailed the Russell Midcap Growth benchmark in the third quarter, driven primarily by stock-specific dynamics. Our top individual detractors included Bright Horizons (Consumer Discretionary), Veeva Systems (Health Care), Horizon Therapeutics (Health Care) and Clarivate (Industrials). Shares of Bright Horizons declined due to the slower-than-expected pace of recovery in its full-service care offering and margin headwinds associated with competition for labor. Stock selection in Information Technology, including our position in Euronet Worldwide, also detracted from relative returns. While operationally Euronet's business performed well, foreign exchange headwinds drove management to reduce forward expectations during the quarter. In terms of positives, our top individual contributors in the period included CoStar Group (Industrials), EPAM Systems (Information Technology), Axon Enterprise (Industrials), Cameco Corp (Energy) and Vulcan Materials (Materials). CoStar benefited from favorable pricing and volume trends and strong margin flow-through, while EPAM benefited from strong delivery execution following turmoil in Russia/Ukraine, where a portion of the company's personnel is based.

Outlook

While the pace of inflation has moderated, it remains above the Fed's target level and further interest rate increases are anticipated. Some areas of the economy, such as housing, already appear to be responding to tightening, but the full economic effects of rate hikes have likely yet to be felt. Rising interest rates, elevated inventories paired with softening demand, and a relatively strong U.S. dollar are likely to create a more challenging environment for corporate earnings as we look forward. In addition, difficult comparisons relative to prior year's growth persist into 2023.

We continue to expect that investors will begin to reward quality attributes, such as the durability of margins and earnings, which have not yet provided a considerable benefit year-to-date. We remain focused on identifying durable businesses whose stocks present attractive risk/reward opportunities, which we believe are well-suited to withstand market turbulence and add-value in client portfolios over the long term.

IMPORTANT DISCLOSURES

The Fund's returns will vary, and you could lose money by investing in the Fund. The Fund invests most of its assets in equity securities of domestic growth companies where the primary risk is that the value of the equity securities it holds might decrease in response to the activities of those companies or market and economic conditions. Individual securities may not perform as expected or a fund used by the Adviser may fail to produce its intended result. The securities of smaller and medium sized companies tend to be more volatile and less liquid than securities of larger companies. In addition, small and medium sized companies may be traded in lower volumes. This can increase volatility and increase the liquidity risk whereby the Fund will not be able to sell the security on short notice at a reasonable price. The Fund is not intended to be a complete investment program. The Fund is designed for long-term investors.
